1. References.

- a. AR 380-5, Department of the Army Information Security Program, 29 September 2000.
- b. AR 380-10, Foreign Disclosure and Contacts with Foreign Representatives, 22 June 2005.

2. The exchange of information between Department of the Army and military establishments of foreign governments and international organizations is necessary for successful participation in international and functional agreements. At the same time, the protection of classified and sensitive/controlled unclassified information is essential to the security of the United States.

3. Disclosure of information will involve one of the following categories:

a. Classified Military Information (CMI). CMI is information requiring protection in the interest of national security, and is assigned one of the following classifications: TOP SECRET, SECRET, OR CONFIDENTIAL. See AR 380-5 for additional information on classified information.

c. Public Domain Information. This is information determined to be suitable for release to the general public.

4. A foreign disclosure decision is required on all information being considered for release to foreign representatives, unless it is clearly marked for public release. Per reference 1b, all CMI and CUI being considered for disclosure must be referred to the installation Foreign Disclosure Officer for approval, denial, or further coordination. The designated Foreign Disclosure Officer for USAARMC is the Chief, Security Division, Directorate of Plans, Training, Mobilization and Security (DPTMS).

Requests for information belonging to another activity/agency requires written authorization from the “proponent/owner” before release. Coordination will be made through the Fort Knox Foreign Disclosure Officer.

6. The United States participation in bilateral or multilateral agreements does not automatically authorize the disclosure of related CMI or CUI to the other participants(s). Each potential disclosure of CMI or CUI must be evaluated on its own merit. The policy of the United States is to avoid creating false impressions of its willingness to make available classified or unclassified information/technology.
